

Dr. Chee Wing WONG
(Honorary Associate Professor)

Dr. Wong received his MPhil degree in Clinical Psychology from the Institute of Psychiatry in London, and his PsychD in Clinical Psychology from the University of Surrey, UK. He is currently a registered clinical psychologist of the Hong Kong Psychological Society, a registered psychologist in the Australian Psychological Board, and a registered clinical psychologist with the Health Professional Council in the UK. Dr. Wong is a Fellow of the Hong Kong Psychological Society (HKPS), ex-President of the HKPS, Associate Fellow of the British Psychological Society, and Member of the Australian Psychological Society. He has extensive clinical, teaching and supervisory experience in Hong Kong, Australia and China. His major research interest is in the affect structure of anxiety and depression. Recently, he is also actively researching in Obsessive-Compulsive and Related Disorders, particularly in the area of mental contamination. He is a founding member of the Research Consortium for Intrusive Fear (RCIF) headed by Professors David A. Clark of Brunswick University and Adam Radomsky of Concordia University, Canada. (www.intrusivefear.com) He is Adjunct Associate Professor of the Departments of Psychiatry and Psychology, The Chinese University of Hong Kong, and Honorary Professor of the Gannan Medical University in Jiangxi Province, PRC. In addition to university teaching, Dr. Wong runs a private practice in clinical and forensic psychology. He is founding Chairman of the Chinese Association of Cognitive Behaviour Therapy (www.cacbt.org), and President of the 8th International Congress of Cognitive Psychotherapy (ICCP 2014) held in Hong Kong between 24-27 June 2014 (www.iccp2014.com). Dr. Wong has been conducting regular CBT training courses in Mainland China since 2001.